IDENTITY CRISIS

[YOU, alone in the dark, filling out form after form.]

NARRATOR

what address have you previously been associated with?

a) a well
b) once a trampoline, sinks
c) where it should propel you
d) upward
e) none of the above

what [redacted] your first car?

a road trip. you remember the road, the passenger. it was black. no, the night was. your hands enveloped the wheel & looked like what [redacted] your mother's [redacted]?

insert a year. you bring up the trampoline.

I cut that hole, she says, didn't want y'all hurting y'allselves.

only, you hear - - - - - I kept you

down

which of these people

lives [redacted]?

something blurs the page

[redacted] were you born?

were you born? 7,000 years ago a version of you arrived black like a long road you are many yous you can see it in your hands

you have [redacted] debt [redacted] following [redacted] you

what is your father's name

[reveal DEBT, a shifting & cracking papier-mâché mass of all white. from now on, DEBT lurks in the background of every scene.]